McLEMORE MAKES GOLF WEEK MAGAZINE'S TOP TEN COURSES BY STATE:

Tied for Fourth with Reynolds Lake Oconee

LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN, Tenn. (May 3, 2021) — The Course at McLemore tied with Reynolds Lake Oconee as the fourth best course to play in the state of Georgia in a list provided by Golf Week magazine. The list provided the top ten courses to play in each state. The listing also makes McLemore the highest rated course for the state north of Atlanta.

With McLemore entering its second full year of operations and first season with the new cliff-edge clubhouse, accolades continue to underscore that the course truly ranks “above the clouds.” The private, 18-hole Highlands Course is available to Members and Guests, and recently opened the ‘Stay and Play’ program. The program allows guests to experience McLemore’s course, on-site lodging and dining at The Creag, with Appalachian inspired dining prepared by Chef Anthony Hooper.

McLemore President Duane Horton said, “We are thrilled with the ranking from Golf Week. It’s humbling to see the reaction from so many in the golf world who are coming to McLemore to experience and appreciate the design and expertise of Bill Bergin and Rees Jones. Their vision and the team executing it has truly placed McLemore on the map and for that we are extremely grateful.”

Horton noted that the McLemore community is also growing and experiencing record interest with four new home starts within the next 30 to 60 days, two new golf cottages that opened in April and, two additional new golf cottages opening in this month. McLemore is also gaining on-line attention with a weekly growth rate of 6% reflected in over 5,200 Facebook likes.

“We are experiencing success from our golf course to our dining offerings to the community we are building with so many,” said Horton. “We will continue to do all we can to strive to exceed expectations and look forward to introducing even more golfers to a place that is truly extraordinary.”

McLemore is located at 785 Canyon Ridge Road, Rising Fawn, Ga. 30738. For more information, visit: <https://www.themclemore.com/>, Facebook: @McLemore, Instagram: @McLemoreClub, or LinkedIn: @McLemore.

About McLemore

Located on Lookout Mountain in Walker County, Georgia, McLemore is planned to be a major branded, upscale/luxury resort, conference center with a mountaintop golf course and spa that will attract visitors from the Southeast, as well as national and international markets. Recently named the “Best Finishing Hole in America since 2000” by Golf Digest and ranked fourth by Golf Week magazine as one of the state’s best courses, McLemore recently opened their clubhouse and on-site restaurant, The Creag. Construction is underway for the lodge being built on the eastern brow of Lookout Mountain overlooking historic McLemore Cove.
